SUMMER 2026

WELCOME TO OUR NEWEST

JURIED ARTISTS

Natalie Avondet / Natalie Avondet Studios

Juried BOMH Painter

My work explores self-authorship through portraiture, language, and repetition. I build each piece through layered marks, handwritten phrases, and expressive color to reflect the inner dialogue that shapes how we see ourselves and how we move through the world.

The female figures in my work are not passive subjects. They are intentional, direct, and present. Cropped closely and often meeting the viewer's gaze, they exist in a space between vulnerability and resolve, inviting reflection on the ongoing process of becoming through choice, discipline, and self-definition. I am interested in the way words can function as both structure and evidence. Repeated phrases, crossed-out thoughts, and layered declarations mirror the way belief is formed — gradually, deliberately, and sometimes against resistance. In this way, language becomes physical, and painting becomes a record of internal work made visible.

Jane Ballard / Jane Ballard PhotographyJuried BOMH Photographer

Today, Jane uses a Nikon Z7 mirrorless camera to capture local icons and scenery. Most of her photographs are realistic representations, using editing programs mostly for color enhancement, sharpening, and cropping. Her favorite photographs are printed on metal or metallic paper, but, one way or another, Jane strongly believes that they MUST be printed to be enjoyed properly. Jane also enjoys exploring new ways to present her images from photomosaico (a technique she developed of cutting and layering several photographs together to create a three-dimensional image), embroidering on photographs, and assembling mixed media creations involving her photographs and other accouterments appropriate for enhancing the feel of the image and the story she is trying to tell. She also prints her images on functional items such as cutting boards and coasters.

Ann KynionJuried BOMH Painter

I try to get my brush wet every day or at least get a pencil to paper. I often get an idea of what to paint and it simmers in my brain, sometimes for a week and or even a month. Sometimes I know what to paint and I begin with it. But as things evolve and colors come into play, the outcome is often totally different than what I envisioned. Sometimes I don't know what the painting is going to be but start anyway... and the outcome is an exciting event in itself.

Claire Hasemeier / Blue Quail DesignJuried BOMH Fiber & Jewelry

For Claire Hasemeier, art and creating have always been a part of her life. She has worked in ceramics, off-loom weaving, basketry, metalsmithing, and sewing. The inspiration for her work comes from the colors of nature. She lives in Lincoln County on top of a hill that overlooks the Mississippi River valley and is surrounded by the colors of nature – depending on the time of the day or the time of the year. She brings this love of color into her jewelry designing. Using micro-macrame and cavandoli techniques, she hand-knots cotton threads and combines them with metals.

<https://bestofmissourihands.org/clairehasemeier/>

Adriana Brown / Adriana Brown ArtJuried BOMH Painter

Adriana Brown is an acrylic painter based in Hannibal, Missouri. She grew up in the Kansas City area and attended the University of Missouri-Kansas City to study art and psychology. She is passionate about the healing power of art and frequently blends her two areas of study. After working for several years in the mental health field, she is now working as a full-time artist and business owner, exhibiting and selling artwork around the United States, instructing local art classes and am co-owner of Alliance Art Gallery in Hannibal, Missouri. Adriana's artwork falls into two different genres, Nostalgic Landscapes and Narrative Surrealism, where she tells a visual story about a theme she is drawn to, usually working in a series.

SCAM ALERT

Sadly there is a SCAM email going out to our members requesting donations for gift cards purporting to come from our board president, Barb Byrne. Please ignore, delete, report. BOMH would never request or seek donations in such a manner. If you receive any email or social media post that you are unsure of, please contact us at admin@bestofmissourihands.org where we confirm if it is legit or not and take any necessary action needed. Below is a sample of the SCAM email. Please do not respond to such emails. Thank you.

Dear _____,

How are you? I hope you're doing well.

I'm reaching out to see if you can help with our Association's pledge to support local women veterans.

We (BOMH) need some gift cards for a donation to our local women veterans in convalescent care.

I am currently out of town and unable to handle this myself, but I'm hoping I can count on your help. I'd really appreciate your assistance with this, and I'll personally reimburse you for any expenses.

Please let me know your thoughts. Thank you!

Sincerely,

Barb Byrne

BOMH ARTIST IN RESIDENCE AT THE MISSOURI STATE FAIR

I'm honored to serve as an Artist in Residence in the Fine Arts Building at the Missouri State Fair in Sedalia, August 19–23. Throughout the residency, I'll be demonstrating the ancient art of encaustic painting, a medium that combines melted beeswax, damar resin, and pigments to create richly layered paintings and sculptural works.

Visitors are invited to stop by, ask questions, and experience the unique process of working with hot wax. I enjoy sharing the versatility of encaustic and hope to inspire fairgoers to discover a medium they may have never seen before.

I'm also grateful to have received a $500 Educational Grant from the International Encaustic Artists to purchase educational signage and demonstration supplies for the residency. This generous support will help create an engaging, hands-on learning experience for visitors of all ages. I look forward to representing Best of Missouri Hands and sharing my passion for encaustic art with thousands of fair attendees.

The name Riseaboveartist is inspired by the scripture "But those who trust in the Lord will find new strength. They will soar high on wings like eagles. They will run and not grow weary. They will walk and not faint." Isaiah 40:31.

An eagle will Rise Above a storm knowing that peace is above the storm. My goal as an artist is to Rise Above the stress from daily life as I create art to honor my creator.

Beauty Between the Paint

Catherine Mahoney oil paints with the eye of a watercolorist.

Story by Emma Zawacki

Artist Catherine Mahoney's unique style lies in an unexpected place: the spots between the dabs of oil paint and brush strokes.

"I like to see the canvas or paper or whatever just shining through," Catherine says. This Hermann artist first started painting with watercolor. Since this medium is transparent oil paint, using it to create highlights. This pays homage to her past medium of choice.

"I love to tell a story," Catherine says. "Whenever I am painting anything, I try to tell something that is unique to the situation and why anyone would want to spend the time to look at it—let alone paint it."

after finishing his chores.

"She set me down and gave me a peanut butter jar full of water and a Prang set of watercolors," Catherine says. "She plopped that brush into the water and mixed up the blue paint and put it in a puddle of water on the paper. Then, she put green beside it, and they mingled together. It caught my details into her paintings.

Something that continues to inspire Catherine are her travels. Her trip to Russia in 1975 marks when she transitioned from watercolor to oil painting.

In Russia, "I did one painting in the studio, of oil, and one painting with watercolor," Catherine says.

For aspiring artists, Catherine has a few words of advice she hopes to pass on. "If you are going to be a manipulator of paint and you are interested in painting some realism, one definitely needs to learn how to draw," Catherine says. "The second thing is how to compose a pleasing scene."

To see more of Catherine's artwork, visit her website at ColorfulBrushes.Homestead.com.

Glass Powder Precision

Barb Byrne's technique creates painting-like glass creations.

in her community, much like the ones she attended. She hosts classes every two or three months, where attendees create items to display in their homes, such as Christmas ornaments or luminarias.

For those who want to try creating powdered glass art, Barb has a few words of advice: "You need to be patient with yourself and the materials and understand that it is an investment of time and money, but it is incredibly rewarding." BarbByrneGlass.com

Barb Byrne's "paint" of choice is powdered glass. While many traditional glass artists prefer to cut their glass from larger pieces and shape it as they craft, Barb approaches this art form differently, using crushed glass powder to create a "painted" effect on her pieces.

Before this Lee's Summit artist had an at-home studio of her own, Barb got her start with glass art in 2009 when she attended her first fused glass class at a community center.

purchase this high-dollar machine. She says that she had a tendency to invest in art forms only to lose interest in them soon after.

However, this time, history did not repeat itself, and Barb kept creating. With the combined efforts of selling her glass creations and loved ones making secret deposits into her kiln savings account, she eventually purchased her first kiln.

"It may sound a little bit trite," Barb says, "But every fewest firings she has ever done on a piece is four, and the most, 14.

She works in small sections, usually starting with the subject's eyes, nose, and mouth before firing the glass powder and moving on.

"You cannot breathe it in," Barb says. "So when I work with it, I have to use one of those respirator masks. It looks really cool."

The inspiration for a lot of Barb's pieces can be traced back to a 300-acre farm she
